

Think-Pair-Share Worksheet - SAMPLE

NAME Bailey

CONCEPT The first pig's feelings

DATE 4/30

What is the question you are trying to answer?

How do you think the first pig felt in the story, and why do you think that?

Think about your answer. Write it down.

The first pig felt sad once the wolf came and blew his house down

Share Answers:

Share answers:
Write down your partner's answer:

Tell your partner your answer. Check this box when you are done.

The first pig was happy at first because he got to play. but then got sad after the wolf blew his house down

Agree on the answer you will share with the class. Write down your shared answer here.

The first pig didn't want to work and so he was happy playing instead of building his house. But then after the wolf blew his house down, the pig was sad. He probably wished he was like the third pig that got to stay in his house

What new ideas did you learn from the class discussion?

The first pig helps to teach us that working hard and being careless is not good. Also you need to be prepared in case bad things happen. If you work hard now you will be rewarded later. It's important to not always play and have fun when you should be working hard. The people that work hard now will be happier in the end.

What is your final answer based on your collaboration with your partner and your class?

The first pig feels happy but it was short. He was happy because he thought he was avoiding doing hard work and got to play. But soon he realized that if he had worked hard in the beginning he would not be sad. The wolf blowing his house down made him sad. He was only sad because he did not work hard in the beginning of the story to build a strong house.